A.J. Perri has been awarded Carrier's 2009 President's Award for the second consecutive year. The President's Award, Carrier's highest honor for its dealers, is designed to encourage self-analysis and reward individuals who have excelled in customer relations. According to Carrier Corp., "The President's Award recognizes Carrier dealers who exemplify leadership and management, customer satisfaction, expertise, business growth and operational excellence."

The winners of this award are considered industry leaders that not only run their own companies well, but also serve as role models and advisors to others in the HVAC Industry. This award presents the opportunity for recipients to share "best practices" and offer peer mentoring to help cultivate excellence across the dealer group. A.J. Perri, Inc. was chosen from a field of nationwide Carrier Factory Authorized Dealers.

"This year's recipients achieved their business goals while delivering exceptional customer value and successfully positioning the Carrier brand in their respective markets," said Michelle Caldwell, brand manager, Carrier Residential and Light Commercial Systems.

President's Award recipients are recognized for the ability to realize it's the customer's satisfaction that counts, not just the sale. That's why they strive to provide personal follow-up and quick, knowledgeable solutions to your home comfort problems. They also keep ahead of the industry with specialized training. All of this makes a big difference when you have to make big decisions about your home comfort.
